MISSION STATEMENT

“Our mission is to provide professional public safety services to residents and visitors of San Bernardino County so they can be safe and secure in their homes and businesses.”

A Word From The Sheriff

2 006 has been a terrific year for our Department. As with any organization, when you have the people to do the job, things simply run better. Thanks to the Board of Supervisors we were able to hire almost 200 new deputies. With that said, I would like to reflect on a few notable events from the past year.

- We were able to open the Adelanto Detention Center in January, housing 706 inmates and easing the overcrowding at West Valley Detention Center.
- In April, Deputy Jim Considine came back to work after being off over eight years recovering from gunshot wounds he sustained responding to a call back in 1997. You can read more of his inspirational story in this Annual Report.
- With the help of the Board, we were able to purchase Tasers for all of our patrol stations. Everywhere the Tasers are in use they have reduced injuries to both deputies and suspects.
- We were able to redesign the Department's website and have invited the public to e-mail comments about how we're doing.
- In November John Fogerty came on board to head up the building of the new Crime Lab, the expansion to the Adelanto Detention Center, and Sheriff's Aviation's upcoming move to San Bernardino International Airport.
- In December we received a federal grant to fund additional narcotics deputies. We took that opportunity to reorganize our narcotics division, forming a full-time team available to respond to the needs of individual stations to assist with crime trends.
- Our Scientific Investigations Division solved a number of cold murder cases using DNA technologies that continue to evolve. This provided a measure of closure to surviving family members who had suffered for years knowing that a killer was out there running free.

On behalf of the men and women in the Department, I want to personally thank you for the opportunity to serve you. We consider it a great honor to wear the badge and to maintain the traditions of this organization. I look forward to 2007, it's going to be another great year.

EXECUTIVE STAFF

Undersheriff Rich Beemer is the Department's second-in-command, working closely with the Sheriff in the Department's day-to-day operations. Together they oversee a staff of 3,400 and a budget of $398 million. San Bernardino County is geographically the largest in the nation, encompassing 20,186 square miles. There are 10 sheriff's stations in the unincorporated jurisdictions and 14 cities contract with the Department for police services. There are four correctional facilities housing an average daily inmate population of around 5,600.

Assistant Sheriff Rod Hoops oversees Operations, which includes Criminal Intelligence, Specialized Operations, and Patrol Regions I and II. Assistant Sheriff Warren Nobles is in charge of Support, which encompasses Administrative Services (Training), Support Services (Communications, Public Affairs, Technical Services), Legislative Liaison, Court Services and Corrections.

The Office of the Sheriff is also responsible for Civil Liabilities, Internal Affairs and the Bureau of Administration.

Completing the Executive Staff are the seven Deputy Chiefs; James Coronado, Sheree Stewart, Ed Ripley, Paul Cook, Glen Pratt, Bill Cates and Bill Abernathy, and the Executive Officer John Fogerty. These officials divide responsibility for the above operations and services.

SHERIFF'S DEPARTMENT

San Bernardino County is the largest county in the contiguous United States, encompassing over 20,186 square miles, with a population of over 1,950,550 citizens. Currently, the Sheriff provides law enforcement services to over 947,109 citizens and oversees 10 county stations and 14 contract stations.

In 1853, our first sheriff, Robert Clift, established Central Station, this county's first sheriff station. Since that time, nine additional county stations have been added to serve the citizens in the unincorporated areas. The county stations are:

Central Station	1853	Yucaipa	1947
Barstow/Trona	1890	Chino (West End)	1955
Morongo Basin	1890	Victor Valley	1973
Fontana	1941	Colorado River	1974
Big Bear	1945	Twin Peaks	1976

There are 24 cities within San Bernardino County. Fourteen of those cities currently contract with the San Bernardino Sheriff's Department for law enforcement services. In 1963, Victorville City became the first city in the county to contract with us. Since that time, 13 additional cities have followed suit and count on us to protect and serve their fine citizens. The contract cities are:

Victorville	1963	Hesperia	1988
Loma Linda	1971	Needles	1989
Rancho Cucamonga	1978	Apple Valley	1989
Grand Terrace	1979	Yucaipa	1990

THE GREAT COMEBACK

On the night of October 21, 1997, Deputy Sheriff Jim Considine was a seven-year veteran of the San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department. Working out of the Sheriff's Victor Valley Station, Jim was a Field Training Officer (FTO), a deputy assigned to ride with and train new deputies in the finer points of working patrol. Jim's trainee for the graveyard shift was Deputy Robert McCoy. Rob was nearing the completion of his FTO program and would be doing the driving that night and handling most of the work while Jim observed, ready to step in if help was needed.

At about quarter past midnight, Jim and Rob heard over the radio that Deputy Joel Caver was in pursuit of a Ford pick-up in the Town of Phelan. Unbeknownst to the deputies, the pick-up was driven by a transient named Carl Cutbirth. Cutbirth was distraught over his inability to find work and had told a friend the day prior that if deputies tried to stop him, "They had better have a lot of fire power."

Jim and Rob started driving toward Deputy Caver's location to assist in the pursuit. They caught up with the pursuit on Goss Road in Phelan. The two patrol cars followed Cutbirth for several long minutes as he drove in what seemed to be a random pattern through the streets in Phelan. Cutbirth drove down Johnson Road, when he suddenly turned down a long dirt driveway toward a vacant mobile home. Deputy Caver followed Cutbirth while Jim and Rob drove around the opposite side of the mobile home, paralleling the pursuit.

Jim and Rob drove around the mobile home and pulled in directly in front of Cutbirth's pick-up. As Cutbirth was driving toward Jim and Rob's patrol car, Jim got out the passenger's side of the car and ran toward a nearby tree. As he was running, he heard three loud "cracks" and his right leg gave out. Jim fell to the ground and realized he had been shot. He knew he was in the line of fire and began crawling, dragging his leg toward a nearby tree.

Cutbirth continued to shoot at him, and Jim could feel the spray as the bullets struck the dirt around him. Jim was hit a second time, in the bottom of his right foot, and he fought furiously to drag himself to the tree. While Jim was fighting to stay alive, Rob was shooting at Cutbirth. Cutbirth then turned his attention toward Rob and began shooting at his patrol car. This gave Jim enough time to reach the tree, where he was able to pull his gun and start firing at Cutbirth. Meanwhile, Deputy Caver was shooting at Cutbirth from his patrol car stopped behind the pick-up.

Jim yelled to his partner Rob that he had been "hit," and Rob gave up his position and pulled Jim behind a shed. Sergeant Richard Jones arrived and joined in the gun battle. After what seemed like an eternity, the shooting stopped.

Carl Cutbirth's life ended that night as a result of the gunshot wounds he sustained in the gun battle.

THE GREAT COMEBACK

Deputy Jim Considine's once promising career appeared to have ended that night as well. Over the next two years he endured over 20 surgeries in attempts to repair the damage to his right leg inflicted by Cutbirth's rifle. The artery had been badly damaged, restricting blood flow, making the bones brittle. Rods and pins were inserted and removed, but the bones simply would not heal, and the pain was a constant reminder of that night.

Jim was later trained as a polygraph examiner and worked in the Specialized Investigations Division assisting the Homicide Detectives and earning the respect of his peers. He enjoyed the satisfaction of being part of law enforcement again, but he missed patrol.

Jim eventually left the Department and went into sales. The money was good, the hours were good, but he still missed police work. One day he was riding his bicycle, trying to stay in shape. He couldn't run -his leg would never allow that- and the constant pain was still there, but he had to do something to stay in shape. Jim was pedaling along when the bone simply snapped. Jim had had enough; he made the most difficult decision of his life.

Jim asked his doctor to amputate his leg.

In July of 2002 Jim's right leg was amputated below the knee. They replaced his leg with a titanium prosthesis and Jim knew right away he'd made the right decision. He was pain free for the first time since the shooting. Soon he was running again and dreaming of returning to patrol.

On April 15, 2006, Jim Considine returned to patrol, this time in the city of Yucaipa. "I missed the camaraderie, the Department." "It wasn't about the money; I love what I'm doing."

Good to have you back, Jim.

What kind of person would voluntarily jump from a helicopter into Big Bear Lake in the middle of winter? A member of the San Bernardino County Sheriff's Dive Rescue Team, that's who.

The Sheriff's Dive Team has evolved over the years from a small group of deputies that were trained in sports diving to a highly trained team of professional Public Safety Divers. Due to the high level of training and advanced diving equipment the Dive Team has been called on for mutual aid support throughout the State of California. The Team has been recognized as a leader in the public safety diving field, and serves as a role model for agencies throughout the country.

The Team regularly assists in search and recovery operations from Catalina Island to Shasta County and has been called to assist in dive operations with the FBI dive team. The team works with the Homicide Division to locate evidence and murder victims in lakes around the county. The Team has recovered over 75 vehicles from the California Aqueduct.

All Team members must complete a 24 hour advanced public safety diving course that covers all aspects of rescue operations, body recovery and evidence recovery. Most of our operations involves diving in water with very limited or no visibility.

Nineteen deputies from across the county and a number of volunteers make up the Team. Members must first have the approval of their commander and have a basic open water scuba certification. They must be in above average physical condition, a good swimmer and have an attitude that supports team work.

The Team conducts training one day each month. The training varies from high altitude diving in mountain lakes to diving under the ice when the lakes freeze over in the winter. Some training involves responding to a witnessed drowning. This can be a life saving effort and requires training with the Sheriff's Aviation Division in helitac operations.

There are 10 team members that are trained in Swiftwater rescue. This is a very specialized rescue operation that involves the use of and deployment from helicopters into fast moving current. Team members are equipped with rescue flotation vests, rescue harnesses and helmets.

All the divers are trained to dive under the ice. This requires an additional 24 hours of training to be qualified to participate in this type of confined space diving.

The Team also has a underwater scanning sonar unit that can help find a body or other items we may be tasked to locate. This is extremely important for the safety of the divers when we are diving to depths greater than 100 feet.

On average there are 20 call-outs per year for the dive team. Over the past few years we have conducted searches in the ocean, rivers and lakes when information was received relating to crime in our county. The Team assisted the U.S. Border Patrol in the recovery of an agent who drowned in the Colorado River during an apprehension at the U.S. / Mexican border.

The Team was called to assist the Redlands Police Department in a murder investigation. Redlands detectives had developed information that suspects in a double murder had thrown a gun into the water off the Big Bear Dam. The water was 38 degrees and the air temperature was in the mid 20s. The bottom at the base of the dam was littered with debris and after six days of diving the gun was recovered. The gun was processed at the Sheriff's Crime Lab and a positive match was made on the ballistics. The suspects in this case were all convicted of murder!

The X26 Taser

Back in 2004, the Department began a pilot program in which Tasers were issued to deputies at the Rancho Cucamonga and Victorville Stations. The idea was to test their effectiveness on a limited scale before taking on the expense of issuing them to the entire force. It wasn't long before the Tasers proved effective and won the endorsement of the patrol deputies.

On June 29, 2004, Victorville Deputy John Gaffney was interviewing a suspect in a commercial burglary investigation. The suspect admitted to the crime and gave Deputy Gaffney some of the property that he had taken from an auto parts store. All was well until Deputy Gaffney tried to arrest the suspect and as they say, "the fight was on....."

The suspect was able to grab his backpack and started to run. As Deputy Gaffney was chasing him the suspect was reaching into the backpack. Deputy Gaffney sprayed the suspect with pepper spray but it did not affect him. The suspect was now digging in the backpack with his right hand and Deputy Gaffney deployed the X26 Taser. The suspect immediately fell to the ground and was handcuffed. A large knife was found in the backpack, and the suspect later admitted he was going to stab Deputy Gaffney. Without the option of the Taser, Deputy Gaffney could have been forced to shoot the suspect.

Numerous incidents like the aforementioned convinced Sheriff Penrod to ask the Board of Supervisors for funding to purchase Tasers for patrol and corrections deputies. The Board ultimately provided 1.2 million dollars and the Department purchased 1,117 of the Tasers. To date, the Sheriff's Training Center has trained 1,400 deputies in the use of the Taser. As part of this training over 700 deputies have voluntarily been "Tased" by members of the training staff. None of these deputies have suffered any adverse effects from the Taser.

The model X26 Taser purchased by the Department delivers 1,200 volts of electricity through two metal darts. The electricity causes an involuntary contraction of the skeletal muscle tissue and overrides the sensory and motor nervous systems, temporarily blocking command and control of the body. In the first six months of use by the Phoenix Police Department the Taser was credited with reducing suspect injuries by 67%. In its first year of use at Florida's Orange County Sheriff's Department, injuries to officers were down 80%.

The Taser is proving to be a tool which will significantly change the way law enforcement deals with violent and resistive suspects.

AN AMERICAN HERO

Many San Bernardino County Sheriff's deputies come to us as former military personnel. The transition from military duty to the Department is a natural due to the discipline, training, and rank structure. They find ease in the familiarity of the Academy, job structure, and firearms training. Omar Palacios-Real is one of those deputies.

Omar was a United States Marines from 1996 to 2000. He started with the Sheriff's Department in 2003, and remained with the Marines as a reservist. Like 30 of his fellow deputies he was called into service for the Operation Iraqi Freedom. Omar made two trips to Iraq, returning safely from both. On the third trip however, he was not so lucky.

On April 5, 2006, Staff Sergeant Palacios-Real was on foot patrol in the city of Haqlaniyah. He and a 19-year-old fellow Marine were investigating a burlap bag on the side of the road when it suddenly exploded. The 19-year-old took the brunt of the explosion, losing one of his legs. Omar was hit by shrapnel in the right side, in his thigh and face. Doctors told him he would be sent back to the states. Omar refused saying, "I'm not going home until my men go home with me, all of them."

The doctors patched Omar up, and sent him back out. Omar began having problems with his eyesight, related to the shrapnel wounds. After much discussion, Omar was shipped back to the States for treatment.

Omar's wounds have all but healed and on October 30, 2006, in a ceremony at Sheriff's Headquarters, Omar's Marine Corps Commander presented him with the Purple Heart.

He's now back on patrol at Central Station.

ADELANTO

In January 2006, the Adelanto Detention Center opened its doors to 160 employees and 706 inmates. Captain Virgil Merrett headed the team that orchestrated the evolution of the privately owned facility into a Sheriff's detention facility. A tremendous amount of work was completed in a short period of time, to bring the building to current standards as required by state, county and local regulations.

Following the six months of construction, the facility passed inspections from the California Corrections Standards Authority, the Fire Marshal, Public Health and Environmental Health. In January 2006, the Adelanto Detention Center opened its doors to 160 employees and 706 inmates.

The inmate population included 636 inmates awaiting trial, and 70 sentenced inmates acting as inmate workers, to help run the jail. The employees included sworn personnel and general employees, as well as culinary, maintenance and health care staff.

The Adelanto Detention Center provides dorm style housing for male inmates while they await and attend court proceedings. The inmates are screened by classification officers to assure they meet the standards to be housed in a dorm environment, rather than more segregated housing at the department's other facilities. There are no high security inmates, protective custody inmates, inmates with significant health issues, suicidal inmates, unusual behavior inmates or female inmates housed at the facility.

The primary goal of this facility is to alleviate overcrowding at the West Valley Detention Center. The opening of the facility has eliminated all "floor sleepers" at the West Valley Detention Center and allowed the county to be in compliance with jail overcrowding mandates.

With the success of the Adelanto Detention Center, the Board of Supervisors has approved an $86 million dollar plan to add four additional housing units and a support / intake building to the facility. This would allow the jail to become a booking facility, further benefiting law enforcement in the High Desert.

This expansion project is anticipated to take three to four years to complete. The new housing units will be comprised of mainly 2-man cell configurations, and will provide beds for an additional 896 county inmates and require 105 additional employees to staff the 24-hour operation.

Homicide And CSI

When Sergeant Frank Bell's telephone rings at 3:00 a.m., he knows it's bad news. You see, Frank is the supervisor of one of the four homicide teams working out of the Sheriff's Specialized Investigations Division. He supervises a team of four detectives who, together with a Crime Scene Specialist (CSS) from the Scientific Investigations Division, conduct homicide investigations from beginning to end.

The 3:00 a.m. call usually comes from a dispatcher asking Frank to call a watch commander or patrol sergeant. Frank will call the watch commander and get the location and a brief rundown of the circumstances. Next he will call his four detectives, advising them of where to meet. Next he'll call for the CSS and give them the same information.

Usually within an hour everyone is assembled at the location of the homicide. The patrol deputy who was first to arrive on scene will give a briefing, a summary of what has happened, who the victim is, and the identity of the suspect if there is one at this point in the investigation. Hopefully there are leads to go on and sometimes the patrol deputies will have someone under arrest.

After the briefing Frank will assign one of the four detectives to be the case agent and work the crime scene along with the CSS. The other three detectives will conduct interviews and begin the search for a suspect if he is not already in custody.

Working the crime scene is a painstakingly slow task. The CSS first takes overall photographs, before anyone sets foot inside the scene. Experienced detectives know that even carefully walking into the scene will alter it for good. After taking overall photographs all items of evidence are located. The detective will document their location, and the CSS will photograph and collect the evidence. Some of the more complex crime scenes, with multiple gunshots or bloodstains, can take up to three days to properly document.

HOMICIDE AND CSI

Meanwhile the other detectives are interviewing witnesses. Every interview is tape-recorded. There will be no ambiguity down the road as to what was said during interviews. Leads are chased down. And during the early stages of the investigation, detectives will work around the clock.

After processing the crime scene the CSS takes all the collected evidence back to Scientific Investigations where it will be processed and placed into evidence. Items are fingerprinted using a wide variety of methods. DNA is extracted from blood and items like human hair or cigarette butts. Many times the entire investigation hinges on the ability of a technician to lift a fingerprint or match a fired cartridge case to a specific gun.

The CSS and the case agent detective will meet up again a couple days after the homicide when the autopsy is performed. Important evidence is often collected by the pathologist performing the autopsy, including DNA from under the victim's fingernails or bullets and bullet fragments. The detective will usually get a preliminary cause of death from the pathologist, but other times still more testing will be required to determine an exact cause of death.

In 2006 the Homicide Detail handled 115 call outs. The majority were homicides, a few were later determined to be suicides or accidental deaths. As a result of the teamwork between the scientists and detectives, 80% of the cases were cleared.

JUVENILE INTERVENTION PROGRAM

It's business as usual on a Monday morning at Sheriff's Headquarters. Business as usual for everyone except the 18 young men sitting nervously in the main conference room. They're in the building because their parents are worried about their behavior, ditching school, stealing, talking back, fighting. Now these young men are about to get a dose of what it's like to be an inmate at the Central Detention Center.

The San Bernardino Sheriff's Juvenile Intervention Program was born in 2001 when members of the Sheriff's Information Exchange Committee recognized a need for a program to educate young men and women to the realities of life behind bars before they are actually sentenced to jail. The program is completely voluntary; both the parents and kids have to be willing participants.

After meeting at Headquarters, the kids watch a short video and then are walked over to the Central Detention Center. At the jail they are booked in, photographed and walked through the jail where they listen to inmates share their stories. These inmates are screened and recruited for their ability to provide a cautionary tale. Many of the inmates benefit from the program and feel a sense of redemption.

Next, the young men are marched into the "chow hall" where they eat the same lunch the inmates will later be served. From there they are loaded into vans for the short trip over to the Coroner's Division. There they receive an education on where a life of gangs and drugs can ultimately lead.

Afterwards they head back to the jail to be reunited with their parents who have been receiving a crash course in gangs and drug recognition. This will be no ordinary reunion, but one that will be conducted over the jail's visiting phones. This is often a very emotional time for both the juveniles and their parents. At the conclusion, there is a small ceremony, certificates are awarded, and many of the kids take the opportunity to apologize to the parents for their behavior.

Since 2001, over 400 young men and women have attended the program. In follow-up calls made to the parents, a positive change in their child's behavior was reported in over 70% of the cases.

BUREAU OF ADMINISTRATION

The Bureau of Administration (B of A) operates directly with the Station Commanders, Division Chiefs, and County Administrators. The B of A is comprised of subdivisions including Budget and Finance, Automotive Services, Field Support, Contract Administration, and the Business Office. The combined budget for the 14 cities that contract with the Sheriff's Department is over 74 million dollars. The Corrections Bureau is responsible for the largest portion of the budget at over 112 million dollars. The B of A does an excellent job of managing the Department's 398 million dollar budget.

VISION STATEMENT

We believe in being a high performance, inclusive department with high professional standards of integrity, ethics and behavior -- guided by the letter and spirit of the law, and the law enforcement code of ethics. We will relentlessly investigate criminal acts and arrest those guilty of violating the law, while building positive relationships with those we serve. This requires each of us to:

- treat all people with respect, fairness and compassion;
- value each employee's and citizen's contribution to the department and the community regardless of position, assignment or role;
